We need your help with new recognition goal

How often have you seen a co-worker or family member doing something that has a positive impact on the workforce or the community? You've all heard of ABC World News Tonight's Person of the Week. Well, we are instituting the U.S. Army Kwajalein Atoll's Person of the Week series. This will be a new feature item in The Kwajalein Hourglass, but it will take the entire community to make it work.

Each day I see employees and family members do things that make a difference in our workplace and community. Look around and see if you can catch someone "doing something right." Everyone working and/or living in the USAKA community is eligible.

Beginning immediately we will take submissions from the workforce and the community for individuals to be featured in The Hourglass. Our goal is to have an employee and a family or family member featured in each Wednesday's Hourglass. Each person/family will have their picture and one or two lines describing their contribution.

Please send your submissions to my Public Affairs Officer Sandy Miller (sandra.miller@smdck.smdc.army.mil) or call her at 51404. Submissions must have a one or two line justification or description of what that person has done to make a difference. The Hourglass staff will make arrangements to get the photos taken.

Now let's get out there and catch someone in the act of making a difference!

Movie reminds us of 40 brave people

I guess we've all heard about the movie, United 93, that's coming out soon.

We've heard how movie theaters have had to pull the trailer for the movie because people complained about how upsetting it is. They say it's too soon. We shouldn't reopen the wounds.

I won't see it anytime soon of course, being out here in the middle of nowhere.

I've wondered if I would go see such a movie. I'm like everyone else. Who wants to be upset by a movie? We go to movies for entertainment and to escape our everyday problems for a couple of hours.

But maybe we should be upset again and remember the day when 40 ordinary people like you and me, who just happened to be on an airplane, showed the bravery that usually is only the stuff of movies.

Have we lost the feeling of anger

Letter to the editor

Thanks to all those who helped with exercise preparation

I want to thank everyone who helped make the Mass Casualty exercise such a big success.

This was my first time to attend the meetings and set up the moulage scenarios for the day. A big thank you to all the students without giving of your time and the realistic acting this would not have given such reality to the incident. Thanks to Susan Gentry, Renee Hirniak for all the hard work. Putting on the makeup was fun. Thanks to the volunteers who assisted kudos for the great job. Thanks to Dr. Eric Lindborg for allowing me to gain the experience for this position.

THE KWAJALEIN HOURGLASS

The Kwajalein Hourglass is named for the insignia of the U.S. Army 7th Infantry Division, which liberated the island from the forces of Imperial Japan on Feb. 4, 1944.

The Kwajalein Hourglass is an authorized publication for military personnel, federal employees, contractor workers and their families assigned to U.S. Army Kwajalein Atoll. Contents of the Hourglass are not necessarily official views of, or endorsed by, the U.S. Government, Department of Defense, Department of the Army or USAKA. It is published Wednesdays and Saturdays in accordance with Army Regulation 360-1 and using a network printer by Kwajalein Range Services editorial staff.

Youngest living Medal of Honor recipient from Vietnam now leading troops in Kuwait

By Sgt. Crystal Rothermel
Army News Service, Kuwait

Life can go down many avenues. For Gordon Roberts, the roads treaded deep into Vietnam's Thua Thien Province, testing his every attribute and winning a spot in military history.

While the path was treacherous and the moment ruthless, the experience did not deter him from life's course. In fact, it was only the beginning.

Today, Lt. Col. Gordon Roberts leaves footprints in the sands of Kuwait and in the hearts and minds of today's Soldiers as he offers experience and advice. He may be the youngest living Medal of Honor recipient, but he sees himself as a comrade, a leader and developer of troops. He is commander of Troop Support Battalion, 1st Corps Support Command and head of Force Protection at Arifjan, Kuwait.

"I think everyone thinks a Medal of Honor somehow translates into leadership. I don't think that is inherently accurate," said Roberts as he smiled and took a sip of coffee. He says that actions speak louder than words.

"What I may bring is a little piece of confidence for the Soldiers when I ride along. They know I have been through a lot and look at me and say, 'well, if he can do it, I can do it,' he said.

Despite his 125-pound structure, Soldiers know Roberts has a wealth of knowledge and often look to him for advice. Like children waiting for story time, Soldiers often request a reflection of what happened that day in Vietnam. Although his biography is found on internet sites and military publications world-wide, the story is as real today as it was in 1969.

Roberts, a native of Lebanon, Ohio, joined the Army three days after graduating from high school, a natural step for someone from a military family growing up in the small, patriotic town.

At 17, he was an Army infantryman. By 19, he faced the enemy and returned home a hero.

The date was July 11, 1969. Roberts was a rifleman with Company B, 1st Battalion, 506th Infantry, sent to eliminate enemy bunkers along a ridge. While approaching the bunkers, his convoy was hit by heavy fire from automatic weapons and grenades. Moving quickly, he made his way from his immobilized platoon towards the closest bunker, firing while running.

Tournament success was real team effort

By Dave Stuedell
Scout dad

As a parent of a Scout, it appeared that this weekend's Cub and Boy Scout fishing tournament was a big success.

Twenty young men, 7-17, participated in the tournament.

This is the first fishing event held for the scouts and it was possible because of the help provided by Trudy

Butler, the Kwajalein Atoll International Sport Fishing Club and the Kwajalein community. KAISC donated and cooked food for the anglers, weighed the fish and got the tent and public address system in place to announce the awards. Local fishermen Ron Tsubamoto, Dennis and Will O'Connell,

Les Saulibio, John Norris, Alan Goodwin, Joe Coleman and Johnny Ysaguirre also supported the event by donating their equipment, money and time captaining boats and providing instruction to the scouts. The scout moms made desserts for the event. The tournament was truly a team effort... bringing to light why we should feel good about our community.

Winners of the tournament included Mike Hillman, Allan Rowe, Mark Harless and Tyler Stepchew who won the grand prize of a Penn 6/0 rod and reel and a $25 Bass Pro Shop gift certificate for the largest fish caught in the tournament, a 22-pound Ono. Asa and Rodrey Thomas won $125 in Bass Pro Shop gift certificates, for the largest tuna caught in the tournament, a 5.5-pound Ahi. Graham Kirchner and Ethan Rejto won $50 in certificates for the smallest fish with a 3.5-pound Aku. The competition would not have been fun without a little controversy. The boat captained by Les Saulibio was 10 minutes late returning to the dock with a 6-pound Aku, which would have won the tuna category, but the team had to be disqualified for late arrival. Nevertheless, they received a $25 gift certificate for being good sportsmen.

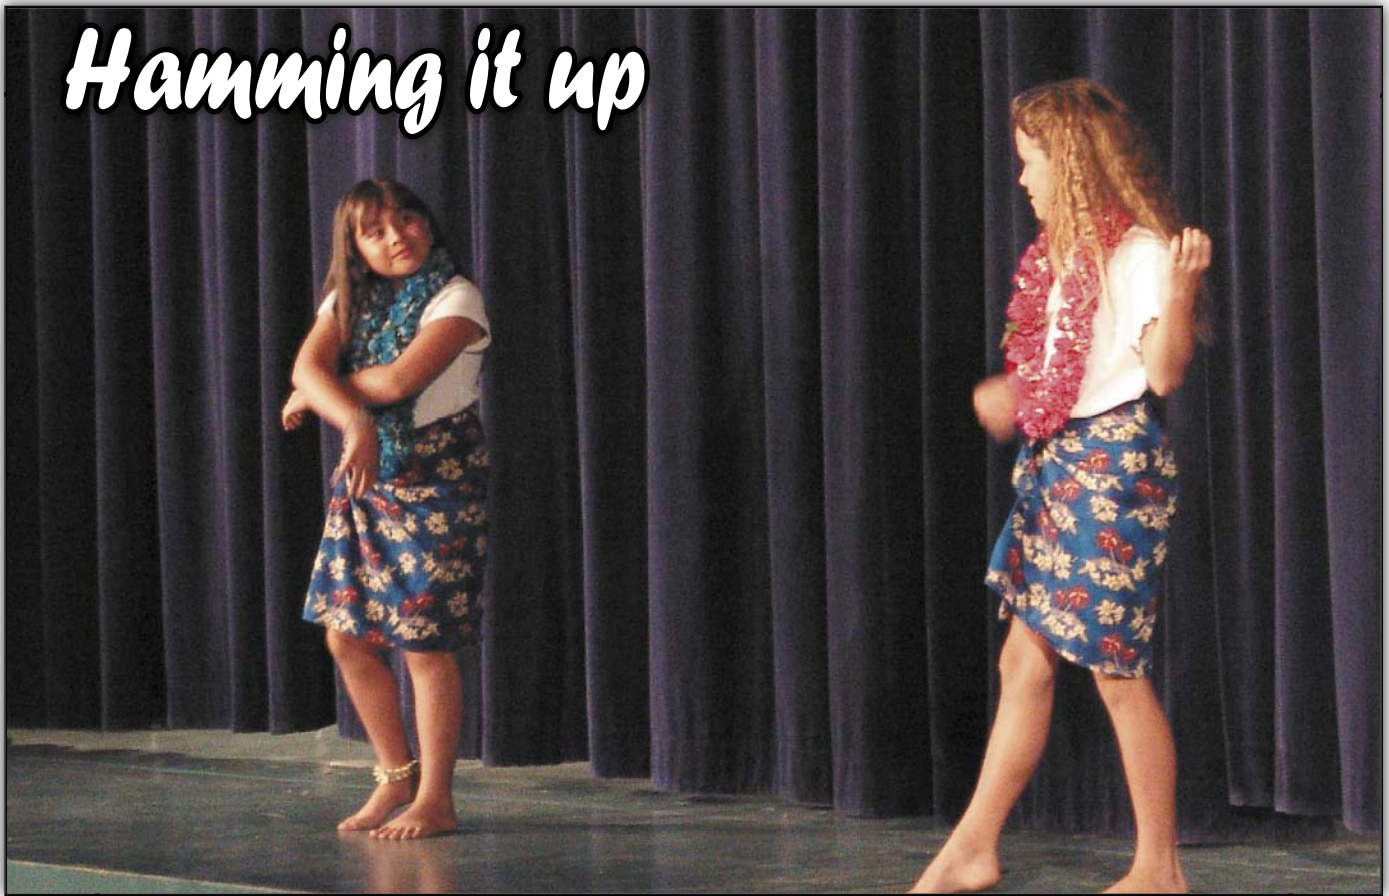

Dennis O'Connell cleans fish as Thad Thomas and his son Asa look on. Twenty participants, ages 7-17, took part in the Monday morning fishing competition.

The boats begin heading out with scouts to begin the tournament.

Show displays variety of entertainment

By Jeff Beringer

The 2006 Talent Show was April 22 at the multi-purpose room and showcased 73 elementary-school age contestants.

Jane Premo, of the Kwajalein PTO, considered the show a big success. Premo thanked show supporters Dick Shields, Shelley Corbett, Mary Kulig, Karen Brady, Sheri Davis, Candace Everts, Kristine Larkin, Hannah Phu, Karla Richards, Stephanie Premo, Renee Corbett and Katherine Kulig.

There was a variety of entertainment from singing and dancing, to the final event, which was the Kwajalein's Next Top Model contest. Audience members were rolling with laughter at the finale. One singer, Kori Dowell, did a special encore, singing Happy Birthday for her mother, who could not have a birthday party due to the talent show

Dairy products require storage at proper temperatures

By Nell M. Drumheller
Editor

"This tastes awful, you try it."

How many times did one of your siblings say that to you when you were a child? There is nothing quite like expecting a gulp of cold, refreshing milk and instead getting a mouthful of moo juice gone bad.

Dairy products that aren't stored at proper temperatures will sour. Perhaps this isn't news to most of the community, but according to David Fearon, Kwajalein Range Services Retail Sales manager, a number of people have come to him with sour-milk issues.

The National Dairy Council seems to know what they are talking about when they give product advice.

The council recommends:

"The consumer is responsible for protecting the quality of milk and other dairy foods in the home. Open dating and proper handling of dairy products can help consumers be assured of dairy foods with a good shelf life (the length of time after processing that the product retains its quality). "Open dating is the date on milk and other dairy food containers indicating when the product was manufactured or meant to be sold by. It is used by industry to indicate the age of individual packages and does not reflect the shelf life of the product. Generally, proper care ensures freshness for a few days beyond the sell-by date."

Dairy products should be refrigerated at temperatures below 40 degrees Fahrenheit.

Researchers from the Mayo Clinic suggest:

- Refrigerate all dairy products within two hours of purchase and put ice cream and other frozen dairy products in your freezer as soon as possible.

- Pasteurization — heating milk or milk products to a certain temperature for a specific amount of time — destroys harmful bacteria. But other bacteria still naturally present in dairy products can grow quickly without proper cooling, affecting the quality of the product. Keep these foods refrigerated or frozen until served.

- Wrap cheese tightly after using a portion to prevent mold from growing. If you find mold on hard cheese, cut off and discard about one-half to one inch on all sides of the mold. Then, enclose the cheese in a new wrapper or bag. If there is an extensive amount of mold, throw the whole block of cheese away. If soft cheeses such as brie, cream cheese or cottage cheese become moldy, discard the entire container.

- Store dairy products for only the recommended amount of time. How long you can safely keep your dairy products varies. For example, cottage cheese, cream cheese, milk, sour cream and yogurt can keep well for several weeks. Other dairy products, such as butter and margarine, can keep for months. Use the date on the package as a guide.

Fearon said if a consumer has milk that's gone bad; bring it to the retail outlet where it was purchased for a refund or exchange.

He silenced bunker after bunker. Despite the wave of enemy fire, he helped the wounded and continued fighting, finally returning to his unit. Roberts' actions not only saved the lives of Soldiers and helped defeat the enemy, but earned him a spot in history as a Medal of Honor recipient.

After serving four years in the Army, the veteran attended the University of Dayton and earned a bachelor's degree in sociology. He gained a wife, son and daughter. He raced sprint cars. He practiced social work for 18 years. By 1989, Roberts felt it was time to take a new path, one out of business attire. He applied for and received a direct commission as an Army officer.

"I left the (old) Army and came back to this one because this Army is much better," Roberts said as he discussed the in today's Soldiers and leadership.

While sitting with troops in his desert combat uniform, Roberts blends into the ranks. He is, after all, a Soldier like the rest. He has a life outside of the military. He completes his tasks, lives by the Army values, and puts on his boots just like other service members.

"I've tried not to change," Roberts explains. "In fact, my focus is on the basics. I have an obligation to you and anyone sharing the same uniform. I have an obligation to be able to do my job and to be in a foxhole next to you, to be able to protect you and the environment."

Roberts frequently joins convoy missions to Iraq and enjoys riding along and watching from the back seat. He observes his troops but does so from a distance.

"I let the convoy commanders do their job even though I outrank them. It is their job," he said as he further explained his leadership philosophy.

"That young Soldier up front is going to have to make a decision. Their decisions are the ones the rest of the company is going to have to live with. My job is to make sure Soldiers are prepared to make those decisions."

Roberts speaks from the heart. Maybe this is because he was that young Soldier on the front lines or maybe it is just part of his leadership style. Either way, Roberts believes in his troops and they believe in him, too.

"Soldiers need to have confidence in their leadership and know that their leadership is fighting for what they need," he said. Throughout his time in the service, Roberts has shared good times and bad with troops. Roberts personally knows the face of the enemy and the heart of today's Soldier and says he would re-walk his life path over again if he had to.

Aeon Flux, imagines a future in which 99 percent of the world's population is killed through industrial disease, and the survivors live in a single city that, despite utopian appearances, is quite totalitarian. Disinclined to embrace any particular ideology outside of a hatred for Trevor Goodchild (Marton Csokas), the leader of the council that governs the walled city, hypersexualized assassin Aeon Flux (Charlize Theron) seeks to bring about a revolution. Retaining the title character's trademark jet-black hair and sleek, revealing clothing, this film adaptation fleshes out the story behind the sexual and romantic tension between Aeon and Trevor.

Munich is a Steven Spielberg movie based on the 1972 Olympics in Munich, Germany, when eight masked Palestinian terrorists invaded the Olympic village, killing two Israeli athletes and abducting nine others. The kidnappers demanded safe passage out of Germany in addition to the release of Arab prisoners in Israeli and German prisons, but when they arrived at the Munich airport they were met by German police and military forces, and in the melee that followed, all nine hostages were killed. In the wake of the killings, the Israeli government gave Mossad, the nation's intelligence agency, a special assignment — to track down and eliminate the Palestinians responsible for the death of the Israeli athletes.

Get Rich or Die Tryin', Hip-hop star 50 Cent makes his movie debut in this hard-edged urban drama inspired by the rapper's own life. Marcus (Curtis Jackson, aka 50 Cent) grew up in a tough New York neighborhood and was left to fend for himself after the death of his mother when he was a kid. Marcus fell in with a powerful crime boss (Bill Duke) who gave him an opportunity to make a good living — by selling drugs. While Marcus has misgivings about his life of crime and has an interest in expressing himself as a rap artist, his success as a dealer makes it hard for him to get away from the life. However, when a heist goes wrong and Marcus is shot several times, he has a change of heart and decides to leave his old life behind. He begins pursuing his dream of making it in music, and with the support of his girlfriend (Joy Bryant) he begins recording a demo tape. Marcus' new songs are inspired by the gritty realities of his old life on the street, but just as it looks like he might be able to land a record deal, he discovers that some of his old business associates aren't too happy about Marcus telling folks about their actions.

and defiance we had that day? We need to get it back because we sometimes seem to have forgotten what we're up against in the world.

Everybody wants to forget bad things. We've all got everyday problems that are enough to worry about. We know we're in a war on terror. We don't need to be reminded of it all the time, especially by a movie.

Or do we? Americans, including me, have a pretty short attention span. The carnage of 9/11 has faded in our minds, maybe because we want it to. Like I said, who wants to remember and think about bad things.

The people on United 93 that day weren't trained to fight or respond to violence. They were just people going about their business and doing their jobs.

I hope everyone in America sees this movie, as painful and upsetting as it probably is. Don't we all wonder sometimes what we would have done in their places?

Those people need to be remembered. If it takes a movie to do that, then so be it.

We need to recall that on the day death stared them in the face, they rose above being ordinary and as terrified as they were, became heroes for the rest of us to look up to.
